Creating a fresh and flexible workplace

Springer Healthcare aspired to create a fresh new working environment after many years in their old office. STACK helped Springer review several properties before choosing a new office building in Northcote. Impressive views form a pleasant background for an open, collaborative yet quiet working space. Staff enjoy open views from workspaces that are sized to allow space to engage in concentrative tasks. A variety of spaces for meeting and working are created around the predominantly library-like open plan areas, including a central café facility.
